

Electricity Generation from Hydropower and Geothermal

The increase of electricity generation from hydropower and geothermal over the next 40 years, as modelled by Enerdata in 2009, shows, that for most regions in the world the installed capacity will be sufficient to meet future requirements. How to deal with insufficient capacity, like in Latin America and the Caribbean, will be part of WEC's Vulnerabilities Studies to be published in mid-2010.

Source: WEC SER Interim Update 2009, Enerdata Model 2009

