SA Future Energy Leaders selected for World Energy Council Programme

SANEA, the South African National Energy Association, is very pleased to announce that two of its nominees, Avesh Padayachee and Pule Segale, have been selected for the prestigious global World Energy Council FELS 100 programme.

The Council admits 100 Future Energy Leaders to a 3-year part-time global programme of specific learning and mentorship designed to position participants for future global leadership positions. Each year 35 participants graduate, opening space for 35 new entrants.

“Avesh and Pule have been selected for the 2017 intake and we are very proud of these young South Africans,” said Dave Wright, Secretary General of SANEA. “The competition was stiff with 160 nominees from all over the world vying for the 35 positions, making the achievement of Avesh and Pule all that more significant.”

“They will not only benefit greatly from being part of this global programme but they will also ensure that the South African perspective is shared with the faculty and other participants,” said Wright. “SANEA is also looking forward to Avesh and Pule engaging with SANEA’s own youth programme and their international development experience will be important input to the local initiative.”

“We congratulate Avesh and Pule and wish them well with this new adventure.”

About the World Energy Council

The World Energy Council is the foremost global multi-energy organisation in the world today. The Council has Member Committees in over 95 countries, including most of the largest energy-producing and energy consuming countries. Founded in 1924, the organisation covers all types of energy, including coal, oil, natural gas, nuclear, hydro, and renewables, and is UN-accredited, non-governmental, non-commercial and non-aligned. The Council is a UK-registered charity headquartered in London. Its objective is the promotion of sustainable supply and energy use to the greatest benefit of all. The Council therefore addresses our most fundamental need for survival, namely ENERGY.

SANEA's Membership of the World Energy Council

In its capacity as the South African Member Committee of the Council, SANEA is positioned to provide an important service to SANEA members. SANEA is the vital connection between South African energy interests and the global network of Council members.

SANEA is authorised to access the various studies and programmes of the Council and extract relevant knowledge and learning for adaptation and application in the South African context.

Equally well, by actively engaging in the work of the Council SANEA is able to inject South African perspectives and experiences, creating global awareness of the opportunities and challenges available in the South African Energy Sector.

The World Energy Council knowledge networks offer enriching information for all participants and are a source of global intelligence for all who actively engage.

This global resource is an intrinsic part of SANEA membership, at all grades, and there is no additional fee.
